We got a call out for a missing Alzheimer's elderly man in Aguanga. Living in Temecula, only 18 miles West, I got on site very quickly only to find that they had already found him. Other team members still driving where told to turn around and go home.

He had been at one of the local hospitals, that use ReddiNet, which is a robust communication network linking hospitals, Emergency Medical Services (EMS) agencies, first responders and public health officials.

The family thanked me dearly for coming out and quickly left to go be with their loved one. Glad to hear this one turned out with good results.
